DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1,2, and 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brass et al. (2003/0123254) in view of Hsien (6802622). Brass et al. shows in Figs. 3-4 the invention substantially as claimed with a battery cell "323" contained in hollow body "320", a head "311" with a plurality of different color light LED light groups "305" and "306" and lenses "317" and switches "321" for actuating the light groups separately. Brass et al does not show that the head is rotatable relative to the light sources to align the lenses with different light sources. Hsien teaches in a flashlight like that of Brass et al. to rotate the lenses in the head relative to the bulbs to have different illumination features with different focuses (see last sentence of Hsien's abstract). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide

Brass et als. flashlight with a rotating head as taught by Hsien for the purpose and advantage of providing the light sources with different illumination features with different focuses. Re claim 2, note the two light switches in Fig.3 of Brass et al. Re claim 7, note in Fig.3 of Brass et al the light sources are two groups of two. Re claim 8, as note above the Hsien's flashlight head rotates relative to the flashlight body. Re clam 9, as noted above Brass et als. light sources are light emitting diodes (LEDs). Re claim 10, note in Fig.4 of Hsien the screw threads in the flashlight head and barrel.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 3-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Claims 3 and 4 add the additional limitation that the switching includes a third state which flashes the second group of light intermittently which is neither taught nor shown in the prior art. Claims 5 and 6 add the additional limitation that the light groups are arranged in an alternating annular arrangement, which is neither taught nor shown in the prior art.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Shannon shows a flashlight with three different color light source and switches for activating them separately.
